

BIRD-SHOT

(Annotations + Voice Guide + Script)

Setting: Middle of the desert, far from a town.

Marlton Redwood Voice: Middle-aged, worn down, stereotypical beaten down man.

Winnie C. Lester Voice: Young, imagine the most annoying voice ever, LOUD, has the stereotypical cowboy accent.

ACT I:

(Introduction to the game and our protagonist, Marlon Redwood)

(Text at the beginning of the game) NO VOICE HERE

~~You are Marlton Redwood. You've been through it all. Robberies, gun for hire, duels, arson and more. This story isn't about any of those events. You left everything behind and are now alone. The only thing giving you meaning in life... is hunting. Shoot down as many birds as you can.~~

(Cut to a shot of Marlon's holding his revolver)

(Voice guide: Quiet, process of remembering someone he once loved, mumbling his words)

Marlon: Betsy... you're all I have left. Bless me with your strength.

(Shot of Marlton aiming down his revolver "Betsy")

(Voice guide: Mumbling instructions to himself, reassuring himself. Imagine reiterating a grocery list to yourself, DO NOT SAY THE CONTROLS LISTED)

Marlton: Aim (~~Mouse Movement~~)... fire (~~Left click~~)... cock the hammer (~~Right click~~)... and if I am out, put as many bullets as I can into the cylinder (~~Press R repeatedly~~)...

(Transition into shooting stage)

ACT II:

(Introduction to the character (Winnie C. Lester) and his gimmick)

(Shot of Marlon holstering his Betsy)

(Voice guide: Neutral, tired, about to go back and go to sleep.)

Marlton: That's enough for today, it's getting dark.

(Voice guide: Far away, LOUD, imagine a wolf finding his prey, a bully finding someone new to bully)

Winnie: HEY!!!

(Voice guide: Caught off guard, weary)

Marlon: Is someone there?

(Voice guide: Demeaning tone, an older kid speaking down on a young kid)

Winnie: HEY CRACKSHOT!!!

(Marlton quickdraws his revolver and points behind him.)

(Voice guide: Ready to put down someone he believes to be someone from his past. Weary, on his toes)

Marlton: Who's there? What do you want with me, huh?

(Voice guide: Sarcastic, demeaning, fucking asshole.)

Winnie: That's some pretty fancy shooting for an elder, huh?

(Marlton has a surprised look on his face)

(Voice guide: Imagine seeing something you would only see in a fiction book. Pure confusion, imagine the feeling of being in a dream while still being awake)

Marlton: What the... what are you?

(Shot revealing Winnie the Gunhead)

(Voice guide: Act like your ego has been hit. "You dare doubt me? How dare you!")

Winnie: What am I? What am I?? I am a gunhead! Hey... watch this and I'll blow your puny mind!

(Winnie shoots one shot from his Gunhead)

(Voice guide: Act like a child that's showing you a new toy their parent just bought them.)

Winnie: See that? I can just think of shooting and BAM! You're 6 feet under!

(Marlton looks at him, he's unimpressed)

(Voice guide: Act like it's just another tuesday. "I am too old for this shit!")

Marlton: Anything else?

(Winnie reveals his arms. They are buff if you're wondering)

(Voice guide: Act like you're trying to impress an older brother and failing)

Winnie: I am not done yet... see these arms? I can kill a horse with these guns!

(Voice guide: Say this line in a way that comes off as "I just want to go home man")

Marlton: Alright...

(Voice guide: Act frustrated while also acting like a dog that's trying to show you a new trick. "Y-You dare say I am not cool! H-Here's what I can do for real!")

Winnie: Hey! Don't talk and just watch Mr Winnie C. Lester do better hunting then your skinny cactus arms!

(Transition to shooting stage)

ACT III:

(Duel between Marlton and Winnie, amount of birds shot by both characters effects how this act plays out.)

(If Winnie did good.)

(Shot of Marlton sitting, he looks impressed)

(Voice guide: Act impressed and like you want to the limits of his power)

Marlton: That was some fancy shooting. You're pretty good, Winnie. Bu-

(Zoom out, both Marlon and Winnie are on screen. Winnie is smiling.)

(Voice guide: Act like a child who finally just got approval from their strict parents)

Winnie: Do you think this ego was for nothing?

(Voice guide: A youngster just interrupted you, be stern, be direct.)

Marlton: But it's not enough.

(Voice guide: You THOUGHT you were getting approval and then again you're hit with denial. Act like an angry child)

Winnie: What...? Need more of a showcase of my power?

(Marlton stands up and faces Winnie)

(Voice guide: Be stern and direct here.)

Marlton: To prove yourself, how about having a hunting match. The rules are-

(Voice guide: Act cocky, you already know what this old man is gonna say. Interrupt him and act like your the shit.)

Winnie: Let me guess... 5 rounds, no turns, whoever shoots down birds wins?

(Voice guide: Be stern and direct here.)

Marlton: You're pretty sharp, youngster.

(Voice guide: Be a snarky prick here)

Winnie: Wouldn't be here today without my wit.

(Transition to shooting stage)

(If Winnie did bad.)

(Shot of Marlon sitting down, he's holding in a laugh)

(Voice guide: Pretend to be shocked. Sarcastic tone. You're holding in a laugh)

Marlton: Wow.

(Voice guide: Have you ever gotten like 15 million messages from your friend asking you to do random things when you just want to take a nap? Take that energy and put it here)

Marlton: I am going home.

(Zoom out shot, Winnie is pissed off. Marlon is walking away.)

(Voice guide: Have a temper tantrum here, a parent is walking away not caring about you when you desperately crave for attention)

Winnie: S-Shut up! Wait! Wait a damn minute!

(Marlton is looks back with a smirk)

(Voice guide: You're holding back laughter still, you're curious on what this failure has to say)

Marlton: This better be good, you've already wasted enough of my time.

(Voice guide: Sound desperate, sound like a salesperson trying their absolute hardest to convince you to buy their product and utterly failing)

Winnie: How about a hunting match. One on One! 5 Rounds, no turns, whoever hunts down the most birds wins!

(Marlton looks down)

Marlton: ...

(Marlton sighs)

(Voice guide: Sigh at the beginning of this line, you REALLY REALLY want to go home but you are somewhat curious on Winnie, almost like watching a car crash, a plane crash and a train crash all happen at the same time)

Marlton: Whatever you say, Winnie. I got nothing better to do with my life anyway.

(Transition to shooting stage)

(If Marlton Wins)

(Close up shot of Marlon smiling)

(Voice guide: Ego boost, happy that you put a youngster in his place)

Marlon: Still got it.

Winnie: ...

(Shot of Marlton looking at Winnie. Winnie is sitting down. Winnie is pissed.)

(Voice guide: Remembering an old friend that's long gone and then a stern tone)

Marlon: You know you remind me of someone... he'd still be here if he had any better aim than you.

(Voice guide: A child on the verge of a temper tantrum)

Winnie: It-It's not that bad!

(Voice guide: Compensating tone, "This kid's not gonna leave me alone, huh? Might as well bring him along for some drinks.")

Marlton: How about I tell you his story, so that maybe you can learn a lesson or two from him?

(Winnie looks down in shame, he's on his knees.)

Winnie: ...

(Winnie looks up at him)

(Voice guide: Defeated tone, might as well take him up on the offer)

Winnie: Are you paying?

(Voice guide: Stern tone.)

Marlton: If it'll make you listen.

(Voice guide: Saying this with a smile on your face. "Hell yeah free drinks!")

Winnie: Deal.

(Cue credits)

(If Winnie wins)

(Shot of Winnie pointing at himself, Marlton is staring at his revolver)

(Voice guide: Imagine this, after a long time of trying your absolute hardest to prove yourself you finally had something go well in your favor and you are SAVORING in it)

Winnie: And to no one's surprise... I win!

Marlton: ...

(Shot of Winnie looking back at Marlton)

(Voice guide: Mocking tone. Punching down someone who's already at his worst)

Winnie: Feel that hot air? That's the air of failure, old timer. What are you going to do?

(Marlton brings out his gun and aims at his chest. Winnie brings his arms out.)

(Voice guide: "You wouldn't shoot me pussy! You're soft as baby shit." ← Mocking and taunting tone basically asking to get shot)

Winnie: Still got the strength to even pull the trigger, old man? Go ahead. Do it.

(Close up of Marlton's finger on the trigger, he's squeezing it.)

Marlton: ...

(Marlton puts his gun back in his holster)

(Voice guide: Realizing that there's no point. Angry tone.)

Marlton: No point, I won't get any gratification.

(Winnie looks at him confused)

(Voice guide: Say this in a confused tone. What do you mean you won't get any gratification?)

Winnie: What do you mean, geezer?

(Marlton smirks)

(Voice guide: Talking down tone. Act like someone just said something really stupid to you to the point where you just have to smile)

Marlton: Your attitude. It's gonna get you killed. I'd know.

(Winnie scoffs)

(Voice guide: Dismissive tone. "I don't give a fuck.")

Winnie: I am still standing, aren't I?

(Marlton has a stern expression on his face)

(Voice guide: Reconsidering just straight up blasting him. Say this in an angry and stern tone.)

Marlton: Just go, Winnie.

(Marlton walks away)

(Winnie shrugs)

(Voice guide: Dismissive tone, nothing was learned from any of this encounter)

Winnie: I've got nothing else to prove.

(Winnie walks away)

(Cue credits)